

EAST SIDE AGOG OVER BIG WEDDING

Beautiful Regina Neufeld, the Daughter of Former Alderman, Becomes Bride of Max Markovitz on Nov. 22.

WEDDING DRESS A WONDER.

All the Dignitaries of the East Side, as Well as Friends from Leading Cities, Will Be Present at the Elaborate Nuptials.

The east side will turn out to do honor to this fair bride and her husband-to-be. She is the beautiful Miss Regina Neufeld, the daughter of ex-Alderman Emil Neufeld, and the handsome bridegroom is Max Markovitz, wealthy and esteemed among his race. He is a wholesale dry-goods merchant of Philadelphia, but he is as well known in the metropolis as in the Quaker City.

The marriage will be an event which will dazzle the east side, for wealth and beauty are to wed, and the east town will take on a festive aspect when the pretty bride is led before the rabbi. Nov. 22 next is the day, and the invitations—some several hundred—have been sent broadcast. They will be responded to by the dignitaries of the east side as well as Mayor-elect George I. McClellan, former Chamberlain Patrick Keenan, Justice Leonard Gierich, Judge David Newburger, Judge Benjamin Hoffman, Assemblyman Samuel Prince, William Hanna, Alderman Donohue, Judge Leon Sanders, Sergt. William Kennel, Borough President-elect John A. Althaus, former Deputy Attorney-General Maurice B. Blumenthal, Senator Daniel Rordan, Aaron Hanover, the "Mayor of Avenue C," Leader Thomas F. Foley and other distinguished politicians, lawyers and residents of the east side.

Friends of the father of the bride from Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore have also been invited and will be present to take part in the ceremonies. For months past the bride, her sisters and her mother have been busy with nothing else but the details of the approaching wedding. The bride's wedding dress, an elaborate creation of old lace and white satin, has been made by a Fifth Avenue dressmaker and the trousseau fashioned on a most extensive scale in New York.

PETTICOATS FOOL POLICE CAPTAIN

Gallagher Captures Two Supposed Girls, Very Fashionably Dressed, Who Are Pursued by Howling Mob.

Capt. Gallagher, of the East Twenty-second street police station, was "run-shoed" for crooks at Twenty-second street and Lexington avenue late last night when what appeared to be two young women pursued by a howling mob were in sight from the north.

"They're lifted some fellow's time-piece," murmured the captain, "and this is my chance for promotion."

Running out into the street he captured the frightened "birds" and said: "It's to the station you'll go with me. Seems to me I know you two naughty, airy fairies. You can't work your graft in my precinct."

The wagon was called and the captives were taken to the station. While waiting the captain noticed that the pursuing mob consisted mostly of young men, and that they uttered and said "Sh-h-h!" to each other, as though they were willing that the captain should proceed. They followed the wagon to the station.

"Well, my pretty daniel, what may be your name and age?" said the clerk to the one with the light blue chiffon dress, wasp waist and lace collar.

"Robert Benjamin Mount, twenty-two years old," came the reply in stentorian tones. The desk sergeant and Capt. Gallagher looked closer and found that the prisoners were men.

Explanations were to the effect that Mount, of No. 22 West Fourteenth street, and John Hora Jackson, eighteen years old, of No. 22 West Eleventh street, the other prisoner, both students in the College of the City of New York, here to be initiated in the "Klax" Kappa Tau and that a crowd of students had captured them, dressed them in women's clothes—even to corsets and long stockings—and were marching them to the secret society's rooms at Nineteenth street and Eighth avenue when they were stopped by Capt. Gallagher. Then the students thought a real arrest might add to the initiation and permitted it to proceed.

But Capt. Gallagher recalled the law about men dressing as women and decided to hold the students. They had to be sent for Prof. Alexis Irene Dupont Coleman to tell them out, and they took a carriage to the initiation chamber. They were discharged in the Yorkville Police Court to-day.

BRIDE AND BRIDEGROOM-TO-BE IN BIG EAST SIDE WEDDING.

MAX MARKOVITZ.

MISS REGINA NEUFELD.

MANAGER'S WIFE SLAVE OF DRINK

Mrs. Richard Dorney, Arrested While Staggering in Streets of Richmond Hill, Is Sent to Queens County Jail.

The apparent indifference of Richard Dorney, for so many years the right hand man of Augustin Daly, to the plight of his wife when she asserted that she had been waylaid and assaulted while leaving Calvary Cemetery last spring, has been explained by her commitment to the Queens County Jail for three months for intoxication. The unfortunate woman is a slave to the drink habit.

The intimate friends of Mr. Dorney have known for a long time that his wife was gradually yielding to the seductions of the bottle, but it was a secret well kept outside of a close circle.

Since the return of Mrs. Dorney to her Long Island home she has been taken to her house by policemen on several occasions. The last time she succumbed to the habit she had contracted her condition was such that it became necessary to lock her up.

She was kept in the station house at Richmond Hill all night and notwithstanding her pitiful appeals for clemency in Magistrate Henley's court at Far Rockaway she was sent to jail for a long term. None of her friends or relatives was in court to intercede for her, and she has been unable to secure a surety on a $50 bond to keep the peace.

Mrs. Dorney's maiden name was Katherine Kelly. She comes from a well-to-do family and has several children. Her husband is one of the best known theatrical managers in the United States. He was not only the business associate but the friend of Augustin Daly. At present he is a road manager.

Into the "clever fool" class come two very rare and superior kinds, says the London Spectator. One may live a lifetime and not encounter more than one of each. But they do exist. We mean the learned fool is a "fact glutton," if we may be allowed the expression. He has more appetite for knowledge than power to assimilate it. Kept in his place, he is a useful member of society; but once let him get what Scotch people call "above himself," and he will begin to use his facts as missiles and become a great intellectual danger.

The cultivated fool has lived in the best-house atmosphere of a highly cultivated clique till he literally smokes of culture, but the source of the aroma is not in his own mind, and if put out to air among Pallidines for a sufficient period he will lose all traces of his much-prized artificiality. It is a great bore to be obliged to observe for any length of time the antics of this type of fool, but they are amusing some times to tell about.

EASY TO ROLL UMBRELLA.

Every man who owns an umbrella has wondered at some time or other why it is that he can never roll it up as compactly and neatly as it was rolled when he bought it. Instead of twisting with the handle, you should take hold of the umbrella just above the points of the cover ribs. These points naturally lie evenly around the stick. Keep hold of these, pressing them tightly against the stick, and then roll up the cover. Holding the ribs prevents them from getting twisted out of place or bending out of shape. Then the silk is bound to fold evenly and roll smooth and tight. When the umbrella is rolled in this way it will last twice as long. And until it gets old, it will always look just as good as it did on the day it was bought.

DETECTIVE INSTINCT.

Civilians Are Frequently Better Sleuths than Professionals.

"The detective instinct is inborn in some people," observed an old detective, "and it is a rather curious thing when you think about it. I have known good detectives, naturally so, who were never connected in any manner with the service. They possess all the mental qualities of a sleuth, quickness to grasp a situation, keen perception, rapidity of thought, strongly developed power of deduction and extreme nervous activity. While it is true all great detectives have acquired distinction through hard work and unflagging application, it is also true that many men have the detective impulse so firmly welded into their nature that it will crop out in spite of themselves."

And I may say in passing, it is useful to them in many ways, for not only operative, but business men of every description, frequently need those peculiar faculties which go to make up a criminal chaser. I once knew a man who had the instinct so strongly developed that he thought of nothing else than the unraveling of mysteries and chasing clues. He found something of interest in the slightest case of theft, and would amuse himself by working it out. It became a mania with him, and he was a source of much amusement to the officers. There was never a murder day or night that he was not among the first on the scene, and his peculiar talents frequently enabled him to lend valuable assistance to the regular force.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Lord & Taylor

Broadway and Twentieth Street and Fifth Avenue.

The old project of widening Fifty-ninth street, in contemplation of increased traffic on the completion of the new Blackwell's Island bridge, was again taken up to-day by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

For nearly two years the proposition to widen the thoroughfare has been before the Board. Numerous hearings have been had, which were largely attended by prominent business men, property-owners, tax-payers and representatives of the Metropolitan Railroad Company, which is vitally interested in the proposed improvement.

After the brief hearing to-day Mayor Low announced that he was unable to definitely determine just how the street shall be widened, and suggested that the matter be left over for final action of the incoming administration.

The Mayor read a report by Herbert C. Floss, designated by the Corporation Counsel to make an estimate of the cost of widening the thoroughfare twenty feet by taking the needed space from the north side of the thoroughfare. His estimate is that the expense would exceed $100,000.

This sum, several property-owners declared, was insignificant compared with the good that would result. Other property-owners insisted that the needed space should be taken from each side of the thoroughfare.

Mayor Low was not convinced that either proposal was right, and so decided to let McClellan settle it when he becomes Mayor.
